ABOUT GLOBAL MONEY WEEK (GMW)

What is Global Money Week (GMW)?

GMW is an annual global awareness-raising campaign on the importance of ensuring that young people, from an early age, are financially aware, and are gradually acquiring the knowledge, skills, attitude and behaviours necessary to make sound financial decisions and ultimately achieve financial well-being and financial resilience. It is organised by the OECD International Network on Financial Education (OECD/INFE).

GMW2026 theme: “Smart money talks”

Young people’s financial lives are full of decisions, from earning the first money to managing student loans, from understanding investments to watching out for scams, keeping track of spending while keeping up with friends. Personal finances can feel daunting, stressful, or even taboo – many young people may not feel confident in asking money-related questions, do not know who they should talk to about money or may be afraid to share about their money problems. By speaking up, sharing stories, and asking questions to the right people, young people can gain the confidence and skills they need to manage money wisely. Financial education gives the tools – from budgeting basics to navigating digital finance – to open conversations that can prevent anxiety and mistakes. Financial literacy can empower young people to build healthier financial habits, avoid pitfalls, and take control of their journey toward financial well-being.

What is the goal of GMW?

GMW promotes efforts aimed at improving financial literacy of young people. The ultimate goal of GMW is to ensure that all children and youth have access to high-quality financial education, they learn about money matters and are able to take smart financial decisions that can improve their future financial resilience and financial well-being.

Who can participate?

All national and international stakeholders can join GMW, including public institutions (ministries of finance and education, central banks, financial regulatory authorities and so on), financial institutions and their associations, civil society organisations, youth associations, universities and schools, education and health professionals, parents and any organisation that may play a role in ensuring that young people become financially literate.
